LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

Will over-population and pollution of the Valley destroy the Carmel River? And is the river a part of the rural landscape which we now enjoy and hope to save for generations to come?

In a recent issue of the Outlook, the State Department of Water Resources said that California-American Water Company can supply water to the Monterey Peninsula from the Carmel River aquifer until 1981. On the cover was a picture of a lovely stream; actually, however, that very weekend, "our river" had been reduced to a bare trickle at the Boronda bridge. In a few weeks, it will have disappeared completely. I have read that the river ran the year round before the dams were built.

"Our river," meandering through the back of our property, was the main reason for moving to Carmel Valley. We had come from Los Angeles, where over-crowding, pollution and flooding had reduced "Their" river to a dirty stirckle in the summer and a problem in winter storms. The solution was to make a cement ditch.

After uncontrolled development - resulting in ground pollution, more building on hillsides - contributing to landslides and flooding, and increasing our numbers of wells being sunk - resulting in dead river trees, will "our river" become a cement drain, too?

The heavy storm runoff should be conserved for later use. But why can't we have a small stream all summer long - just enough for children to wade in and fish to live in, not die, as they do every year at this time?

Why should we criticize a stream flowing to the ocean? We do not complain about all that "unused" sea water just sitting there. Will we be satisfied when it is gone, and say that it went to a useful purpose? Or will we demand that it be saved as a part of our rural heritage?

"May the countryside and the gliding streams content me. Lost to fame, let me love river and woodland." --Virgil

Dear Editor:

We wish to extend our thanks to the Carmel Valley Fire Department and all who were instrumental in the prompt and efficient manner in which they brought the fire under control on our ranch on Los Laureles Road on Saturday, July 20.

What a wonderful thing to know that we have the organization to combat the wanton destruction of fire-which was, in this instance, apparently caused by some thoughtless, careless individual who threw a lighted cigarette in the dry grass.

What an expense this must have been to the taxpayers.

Let's all be very careful about fire.

Sierra Club opposes Seaside beachfront motel

The Ventana Chapter of Sierra Club this week announced plans to support the people of Seaside in their efforts to save Seaside's only beach from being covered over by a large motel-restaurant complex.

"We have seen enough of the Monterey Peninsula's beautiful beaches eaten up by hotels and apartments," the chapter's executive committee said. "We cannot permit our magnificent bay shoreline to disappear under tons of steel and concrete in the shortsighted, outmoded pattern which marks ocean frontage at Miami, Waikiki and most of Los Angles County."

The club called attention to the fact that Seaside's total beach frontage is only 475 feet and that the proposed development would cover nearly five acres, spreading over the entire beach. It would "leave only a people chute like the grudging passageways in Malibu, which make it possible for the public to reach the beach by walking between chainlink fences and concrete walls."

"Visible from the freeway as people enter Monterey even now, is a blemished large section of beach and dunes as a result of the mistaken decision, several years ago, to allow construction of a national chain motel and associated gas stations," the 1600-member chapter said.

It added that the new development, if allowed, "would double this damage to the beach including asphalting the sand for a parking lot for 270 cars."

"But most importantly," the club pointed out, "it would serve mainly out of town visitors and cut off citizens of Seaside from normal use of their own beach."

"We are convinced that if the people of Seaside were polled today, they would say, "No," to the idea of a 160-unit motel, or any motel, on their only beach."

The complex is being promoted by the Bostland Company, the Ventana statement noted, "with Atlantic-Richfield Oil Company apparently furnishing the financing, and a real estate firm called Southwest Properties handling development. Bostland's offices are located in Orange County in Southern California, where excessive development has greatly destroyed natural values."

If public acquisition of beach land proves impossible and if some structures are to be placed on the Monterey Bay coastline, the Sierra Club statement strongly recommended "that they be at least 400 feet back from mean high tide."

Development soars in Carmel Valley

During the past year, projects involving construction of at least 2,513 permanent or transient dwelling units have been approved or proposed for the Carmel Valley area, according to Robert Slimmon, zoning administrator for Monterey County, and Bill Brown, president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association.

The development plans are as follows:

| | no. of units |
|---|---|
| Approved: | |
| Meharry Motel | 162 |
| Arroyo Carmel, additions (permanent) | 70 |
| Riverwood, additions (permanent) | 30 |
| Zoning available, use permit not yet granted: | |
| Odello | |
| transient | 300 |
| permanent | 298 |
| Val Verde Drive (permanent) | 120 |
| Proposed: | |
| Holt Ranch | |
| transient | 200 |
| semi-permanent | 420 |
| permanent | 180 |
| Rancho Canada Hotel (transient) | 300 |
| Villas Carmel del Pacifico (permanent) | 305 |
| | 2,513 units. |

Recycling in the Valley

NEWSPAPERS may be deposited in bins for recycling at the following locations in Carmel Valley:

--Brinton's Hardware store in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center;

--Carmel Valley Outlook office in the Mid Valley Shopping Center;

--Carmel Valley Community Center on Ford Road; profits from the recycled papers will be used for youth activities sponsored by the center; the bin was donated by John Roscelli Corporation of Carmel.

ALUMINUM refuse may be brought in bags or boxes to the Carmel Valley Community Center on Ford Road. Recycled cans, foil, t.v. dinner plates etc. will help finance the youth activities offered by the center. For those unable to deliver the refuse themselves, a pick-up may be arranged by calling 659-2934, 659-2398, or 659-2468.

Also accepting waste aluminum is Isabel Pierce in Robles del Rio. Arrangements may be made by calling her at 659-4615.

GLASS is not yet being recycled through an organized community program. However, Isabel Pierce of Robles del Rio will accept glass, sorted by color, which she will deliver to the J.M. Smucker Co. plant in Salinas. Those wishing to deliver glass to her home or to help with driving to Salinas are asked to phone her at 659-4615.

Anyone with further information on recycling in the Valley is asked to contact the Carmel Valley Outlook.

Schedule of public hearings

Planning Commission

Riverside Park: At 3:10 p.m. on Wednesday, July 31 a public hearing will be held to consider a request from Nicholas Neddelcove to extend the Riverside Park campground's use permit for one year and to allow two onsite travel trailers for resident employes. The planning commission hearing will be in the supervisors' chambers at the county courthouse in Salinas.

Batch Plant: On Wednesday, August 14, a public hearing will be held in the supervisors' chambers in the county courthouse in Salinas to consider a request for a reclassification of two acres in Martin Canyon from the present residential agricultural zoning to general commercial for operation of a commercial concrete batch plant. The hearing was continued from July 10.

Cal-Am pumping facility: At 11:15 a.m. on July 31 the planning commission will hear a request by California-American Company for a larger building and new pumps at the existing pumping facility on Carmel Valley Road, west of Laureles Grade. The additions are planned to allow an increase in the amount of water pumped from 150 gal-min to 250 gal min.

Hearing Officer

Rio Road Motel: A public hearing will be held at 10 a.m. on August 9 before County Hearing Officer William Stoffers on a draft environmental impact report for a proposed 127-room motel and restaurant to be located on two acres north of Rio Road at the mouth of Carmel Valley; a use permit request was filed by the devloper, Carmel Properties Inc. of Monterey.

Regional Water Quality Control Board

Water quality control plan: A public hearing will be held at 9:30 a.m. on Thursday, July 25 in the Salinas City Council chambers at 200 Lincoln Avenue to review the Water Quality Control Plan abstract for the Central Coast Basin, which presents a series of recommendations on several types of wastewater management and disposal systems for the area. After the report has been evaluated at public hearings, it will be approved by the Regional and then the State Water Resources Control Board, and finally by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, as part of a comprehensive plan for all 16 watershed planning basins within the state. Public participation is encouraged at the hearing.

CVPOA

Quarterly meeting: The Carmel Valley Property Owners Association will hold its summer quarterly meeting at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, July 31 at Del Mesa Carmel's Redwood Room. Guest speaker will be Dr. John Phillips, former director of Hopkins Marine Station, who will present a colored slide presentation on "The Environment: Where We Are And Where We Are Going."

Weekend fires blaze in Valley, arson suspected

A $500 reward has been offered by the California Division of Forestry for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for any one of the two field fires that blackened 1,615 acres last weekend, according to a forestry official.

The fires which raged in Carmel Valley last Saturday and Sunday, are suspected to be the work of an arsonist or arsonists. Sunday's fire is the ninth in a series of suspected arsons.

Saturday, a fire was reported on Los Laureles Grade at 11:20 a.m. and was contained by 3:30 in the afternoon. Robin Hamlin, a California Division of Forestry engineer, was injured in the fire when a rock rolled down the hill, hitting Hamlin and shattering his leg. Hamlin was transported to Community Hospital, where he is undergoing surgery and treatment for the leg which received multiple fractures. No other injuries were reported.

The fire was controlled by the California Division of Forestry with the aid of the Carmel Valley Fire Department. Five aircraft, one helicopter and other equipment responded to the mutual aid call Saturday.

Sunday's fire was reported to have broken out in four or more areas simultaneously. The fire broke out at 1:30 p.m. on Cachagua Grade, according to Fire Capt. George Alex of the Division of Forestry's, King City.

The fire spread very fast during the first two hours, consuming 1,000 acres due to strong northwesterly winds and the downed limbs from last winter's heavy snows. It was thus particularly difficult for the fire crews to line up along the perimeter of the blaze.

Mutual aid was provided by the U.S. Forest Service, and by fire departments from Carmel Valley, Carmel Highlands, Salinas, Monterey and the California Office of Emergency Services. The Carmel Fire Department was on call to cover any other fires that may have occured in the Valley.

Fire officials credited the concentrated backfire attack by both state and U.S. Forest Service air tankers along the Tularcitos Ridge as the major factor in containing the blaze by 7:30 p.m.

No structural damage was reported from the fire, although electricity was temporarily knocked out in the area for more than five hours, according to a PG&E spokesman.

The loss of power may have become a crucial item because it is relied upon by many residents for the operation of their wells. During the Sunday fire, wells were used to wet down homes as a precautionary measure.

The blaze on Cachagua Grade at one point threatened the COMSAT (Communications Satellite Corporation) station, with brush flames leaping within a mile north of the station.

Ten air tankers, 14 California Division of Forestry fire engines, 5 state emergency service vehicles and 5 California Division of Forestry bulldozers helped to fight the fire.

Twelve crews, of 15 men each, were also sent from the Department of Corrections Honor Corps to help with the fire.

The fire was declared contained at approximately 8:30 p.m. Sunday, although crews remained until Monday night extinguishing the embers.

Carrying capacity study group conducts dry run impact analysis

THE CARMEL VALLEY Carrying Capacity Study Group met last Monday at Rancho Canada Golf Club in their continued effort to arrive at an optimum population figure for Carmel Valley by September of 1974.

The study is being conducted by approximately 20 Valley residents under the leadership of Dr. Harold Chatland of the National Science Foundation, which has provided a $5000 grant for the project in an effort to develop planning and decision-making tools for use at the community level.

Monday night, the group undertook what appeared to be a learning exercise in conducting an impact analysis, in preparation for the actual development and final adoption of a growth policy by the group.

Chatland directed study group participants to form into units of four or five each to evaluate the effects of a no-growth policy for Carmel Valley. While participants voiced general agreement that such a policy was unrealistic, they agreed to proceed with the exercise, and estimated the impact of a no-growth policy on 50 separate items involving environmental resource, housing, economic and social factors, including water quantity in the Valley, and water quantity in the Peninsula and taxes surrounding areas, (short and long-term effects), availability of low-cost housing in the Valley, and growth pressures on the Peninsula and surrounding areas.

Participants were instructed to assign numerical values to the importance they personally attached to each of the 50 items as well as numerical values to the amount of impact they estimated the policy would have on each separate item. While debate was encouraged within each of the units, evaluations were to be made on an individual basis, Chatland instructed.

"Once the impact analyses of the no-growth issue have been completed and returned to me," Chatland said, "we'll have the experts go over the items and give their best estimates of the direction and strength of the impact of no-growth on these items, and I will be able to cite case histories to back up their evaluations."

The list of potentially affected items provided by Chatland for the analysis included fourteen which related to factors outside Carmel Valley.

Explained Chatland, "If growth in one area is restricted, the probable result will be a boom in surrounding areas."

Betty Davis, a participating Valley resident, suggested that since sewage and air pollution problems are currently affecting the Valley, specifically, "maybe some other areas can take over some of our population growth."

"There certainly are areas that need the growth and want it," answered Chatland. "We should look to regional government to aid in formulating plans for unilateral action," he added.

In his presentation of the concept of a Valley carrying capacity study before the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association in April of 1974, Chatland has stated that due to the homogeneity and interrelatedness of communities within the Monterey Bay region, and the Peninsula, in particular, proper planning for the Valley would require consideration of the resources, needs and desires of these areas.

ALSO DURING Monday night's meeting, Chatland presented to the group a compilaton of the suggestions made several weeks ago by participants in an effort to define the characteristics of Carmel Valley as it would ideally be ten years hence. The suggestions, are as follows:

Minimum growth in the present population;
Minimum commercial expansion;
Minimum numer of multiple-unit dwelling facilities;
Minimum number of facilities for transients;
Preservation of open space;
Control and reduction of air pollution;
Maintenance of quality and flow of water in Carmel River;
Development of a public transportation system;
Prohibition of any major highway construction;
Land now used for agricultural purposes should be retained as such;
Maintenance of the present rural atmosphere;
Down zoning of land within the Valley;
No conversion of commercially'zoned land to high-density residential uses;
Minimization or prohibition of hillside development;
Development should be at foot of hills and not on agricultural land;
There should be no ridge-top development;
A slope-density formula should be determined and enforced;
Riding and hiking trails should be developed;
Bicycle lanes should be provided along surfaced roads;
The Valley should be incorporated;
The Carmel Valley Master Plan should be followed;
No new large dam should be built; San Clemente dam should be enlarged instead;
Sewage effluent should be properly treated and used for irrigation;
There should be no sewer development; instead requirements should be set to provide for large building lots;
-Facilities, if any at all, should be provided for light aircraft only;
Commercial buildings in the Village should be under strict design control;
In the Village there should be no additional restaurants or gas stations;
There should be no chain stores in the Village;
Economic imbalance in business should be avoided in the Village;
There should be no building on flood plains;
Cultural activities should be developed in the Valley;
More recreational opportunities should be provided for Valley residents;
A park is needed in Robinson Canyon;
Many more trees should be planted in the Valley;
A permanent landscaped area should be developed for mobile homes;
More middle-income housing should be built in the Valley;
A police station should be provided;

The next meeting of the study group will be held at Rancho Canada at 8 p.m., Monday, Aug. 5.

ROSIE-AS EVER

Ordinarily one wouldn't think of a man and a store as an institution. But William I. Henry ("Rosie") and his "Cracker Barrel" were so fundamental to the development of Carmel Valley, especially the Robles Del Rio and Village areas, that they are all of that by now -- bona fide, if unofficial.

A quarter of a century ago, when Rosie first started his general store, there were only a few scattered farms along the Valley floor between the Village and Highway 1. Every morning Rosie went to town (Carmel) and on the return trip, made deliveries of milk, bread and mail along the way. (He was official postmaster from 1941 to 1949.)

Rosie's back room beer bar served as a community meeting place then and retains the same flavor of camaraderie today -- continuing, as ever, on a seven-day-a-week basis. May the next 25 years be as good as the first! Congratulations, Rosie!

MONK PLAYS AT JAZZ FESTIVAL

Thelonios Monk, the enigamatic pianist who has been a major jazz influence since the 1940's, has been signed to perform at the Twelfth Annual Monterey Jazz Festival, to be held this year, September 19-20-21.

The Monterey Jazz Festival is held in the 7,000-seat outdoor arena on the Monterey County Fairgrounds. It consists of five concerts, Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings and Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Thelonious Monk led his own small groups from the 40's. Leonard Feather has described Monk as a visionary jazzman, who along with Dizzy Gillespie, Charlie Parker, Bud Powell and Kenny Clarke, worked out the harmonic and rhythmic variations that were to lead to the establishment of "bop" as a jazz style.

Many of Monk's compositions have become jazz classics -- such pieces as "Round Midnight," "Espistrophy," "Well You Needn't" and "Straight No Chaser."

'HISTORY OF INSPIRATION'

Carmel Valley can give credit to some residents who, in 1953, worried that this countryside could turn into an urban area. Indeed they saw the artichoke fields west of Highway 1 covered with houses on urban lots, and realized this was an opening threat to the scenic and rural atmosphere of the Valley.

In the late 1940's an organization of property owners was formed. They felt a tool for conservation of future land use was a master plan, as much of the Valley was then under loose agricultural or specific commercial zoning. They hoped they could protect the quality of the environment through more specific zoning and a public philosophy that was concerned with ultimate building site capacity.

The residents were led by a woman, the late Orre Haseltine, who saw the developing threats and planned to forstall conspicuous land misuse.

DENSITY DEBATE CONTINUES

Walter Wong, Monterey County environmental control officer, spoke before the Carmel Valley Village Study Committee last Monday on the much discussed subject of "People and sewage in Carmel Valley."

"How much can the soil take? he asked the group rhetorically.

The real question at issue, however, at least to the several commerical property owners and potential developers present, was if Wong was in a position to limit development.

The owners, who in the past have been critical of the committee's recommendation of a six-unit-per-acre density, were flatly informed by Wong that he had little direct control over future growth in the area.

He said his realm of influence can only be extended by setting standards for population density in areas served by septic systems, based on soil absorption rates.

"I think what Walter Wong was really telling us," committee chairman Bill Brown told the group after Wong had left, "is that the Valley can't support over six units per acre."

Barracudas to compete for diving championship

The Carmel Barracuda Diving team is hoping to retain its 1973 Tri-County Diving Championship crown when it enters the finals, scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. this Saturday at Monterey Peninsula College. The championship meet is open to the public with no admission charge.

Under the instruction of coaches Robert Horn and Sandy Sweiss, the Carmel-Carmel Valley divers have taken numerous awards in all age divisions at their last two meets.

Ribbons awarded at Cabrillo College in Aptos went to:

8-and-under, girls: Laura Horan, 3rd;

9-10, girls: Lori George, 2nd; Eva Clark, 3rd; Amy Clark, 4th;

11-12, girls: Kami Tate, 2nd; Anna Allotti, 3rd; Ann Gibbons, 4th; Lezelle Martin, 5th; Amanda Mallery, 6th;

11-12, boys: Charles Marcucci, 5th;

13-14, girls: Deanna Campbell, 1st; Roxanne Mahroom, 2nd;

13-14, boys: Shane Hattan, 1st; Jamie Leonard, 3rd; Barry McGuckin, 5th; Shawn Sweiss, 6th;

15-17, girls: Barbie Leonard, 2nd; Anita Campbell, 5th;

15-17, boys: Byron Kolding, 6th;

The all-division diving meet, held Friday at Hartnell College in Salinas, found one of the top 15-17 Barracudas, Barbie Leonard, benched with torn ligaments in her foot.

First places were awarded as follows to Carmel divers: 8 and under division, Laura Horan; 13-14, Deanna Campbell; and 15-17, Heather McPhee.

O'Neals graduate

Two June graduates from the University of Hawaii, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Neal are spending the summer in Carmel Valley with family and friends. Mary and John will continue work toward their chosen field of Ceramics when they enter California State at Fullerton this fall.

Mary is the daughter of Valley-ites, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Freeze of Bonita Way, and John is the son of Mrs. Bettie O'Neal of Robles Del Rio and Frank O'Neal of Carmel.

John's sister, Molly O'Neal, a major in dance at Stephen's College in Columbia, Mo., is expected home in August from Steamboat, Colo., where she is attending the summer school of dance sponsored by Stephens.

Chapel Guild party planned

Violets and vacations combined for an interesting and attractive theme at the July benefit bridge and canasta party held at the Carmel Valley Community Chapel Fellowship Hall. CO-hostesses Mrs. Thomas (Marjorie) McKiernon and Mrs. S.N. (Dorothy) Trevino decorated the tables with beautiful African violet plants, which were awarded as prizes, and embellished tallies with scenes familiar to players leaving and returning from summer vacations.

Bridge awards for first and second place were made to Flo Holm and Bernice Leoni, while Louise Koenig and Hazel Carp topped the canasta players.

Table prizes went to Rosa Clark, Elsie Siemens, Lucille Ambrogio, Jean Fairchild, Mary Young, Fran Wilson, Connie Service, Edna Lewis, and Dorothy Edwards.

Mrs. Elbert Wade, hostess for the August card party, invites you to phone your reservations to Vera Bautz, 659-2951.

Get well soon, Herbert Crooks

Best wishes for a speedy recovery to Herbert Brooks of Lupine Lane who is recuperating from recent surgery at Monterey Hospital.

Arriving from her home in Venice, Fla. for a brief visit during her father's illness was former Valley resident Mrs. Joseph (Betty) Keys. The Keys boys, who had participated in numerous activities in the Valley, are now busily involved in Florida, where Jamie is swimming with the Venice Aquatic Club, and Ty was recently chosen as the only fifth grade representative to attend a camp in Orlando, Fla. under the sponsorship of a garden club.

Prior to Crooks' illness, the Valley couple attended the graduation of their son Lance from the University of Pacific School of Dentistry in San Francisco and were guests at the alumni banquet. Lance plans to open dental practice soon with his brother-in-law, Dr. Paul Cheney of Sanger, Calif.

Baskets missing at White Oaks

Have you noticed - the lovely hanging baskets at the White Oaks Gallery are missing? The unusual flowering cactus plant (similar to a Christmas cactus) with its sensational pink blossoms and an equally lovely fuschia, which have attracted so much attention and brought so much pleasure to residents and tourists alike, have been taken.

Barbara Mark, proprietor of White Oaks will grant full pardon to the "potted plant pilferer" if he will return the baskets to their hooks under the White Oaks. (Remember, the "Clock Crook" and the "Boar Head Bandit" repented - there is honor among thieves).

ORGANIC GARDENER

By LEE HALL

Organic problems

There are some undesirable things that result from organic gardening, some of which have to be avoided by proper care, but some of which have to be lived with. The latter includes the matter of moles.

Use of great amounts of compost, manures, and other organics, results in the rapid multiplication of earth worms. By the second and third year, a forkful of earth will contain 20 or 30 earthworms.

A mole's diet consists almost exclusively of earthworms, as compared to a gopher, whose diet is mainly plant material. With such a plentiful supply of food, moles tend to increase in size and numbers.

Moles are the animals that leave a raised path of dirt on top of the ground wherever they go. The light crumbly organic soil allows them to move rapidly under the surface gobbling earthworms. Moles do not eat the roots of plants, so do not harm established plants.

Their main damage is in tunneling past germinating seeds and small seedlings, letting air into the area. This prevents the seeds from germinating and causes small plants to die due to too much air at the roots.

Moles are hard to catch and even cats don't get many because they do not come to the surface like gophers do. Gophers are the animals that make the pile of dirt at the entrance of their hole. Gophers are very destructive and go deeper under the ground than moles. (They do not leave a ridge of dirt marking their passage underground.)

Cats will wait at the opening of a gopher hole and catch and eat gophers. But on the rare occasion when they catch moles, they won't eat them.

There are mole traps available, but since moles don't have well-travelled tunnels like gophers, it is hard to locate a mole tunnel, where the mole will return for trapping.

The only solution we have found for moles is to wet down and cave in the tunnels when they are too close to seeds or small plants. Some books advocate the use of cyanide gas to kill the moles, but cyanide gas is highly toxic; one lungful will kill a man, so we do not recommend it.

Another disadvantage of organic growing that can be controlled is weed propagation. Weed seeds are killed during composing, and a two-inch layer of compost will prevent weeds that are already on the ground from sprouting.

It is easy to become disdainful of weeds and let one or two go to seed. A number of weeds produce one-fourth million seeds from one plant, so even one weed allowed to go to seed is potential trouble, especially when it is remembered that weed seed can live as long as 27 years, waiting for the right germinating conditions.

If cultivated plants do so well in organic soil, it can be expected that weeds will, too. We let some wild oats and barley grow in one corner of the garden. These plants usually begin to head at two to three feet, but in the organic soil, they grew to seven feet tall before they began to set heads.

If a single weed can produce one-fourth million seeds in regular soil, organically grown weeds should double that.

Another thing disturbing about organically grown weeds is that they are so lush that they sometimes break off above ground when pulled, leaving the roots in the ground. The solution lies in not letting a single weed go to seed.

The best method of getting the weeds is to pull with one hand and have a razor sharp, short handle hoe in the other. The weeds that break off can be shaved off just below the surface of the ground with the hoe. Pulled and cut weeds can be left as a mulch or put in the bin for composting.

We started to let a few fox tails grow organically but after the experience with wild oats and barley, we were afraid fox tails would become lethal weapons.

Mail registration opens for MPC

Convenient mail registration for more than 315 evening, weekend, off-campus and television classes in Monterey Peninsula College's fall 1974 semester program is now in progress.

The deadline for mail registration applications is Aug. 14. After that date, registration for evening classes will be held on campus Sept. 4 and 5 from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the MPC Gymnasium. Classes start Sept. 10.

Late registration for evening classes will be held through the second class meeting in conjunction with the instructor and the registration desk which is located in the Student Services Building.

Class enrollments in the MPC Evening Division have jumped an average of 34 per cent in the last two semesters and were up 15 per cent this summer, siad Keith Merrill, dean of community education, whose office is in charge of both evening and summer programs.

An 8 per cent growth in evening enrollments has been projected for the upcoming fall semester, said Merill and this is in light of a substantial increase in the number of classes being offered.

New this year will be reduced registration fees for California residents. The $13 Adult Fee which had been charged for the last several years has been elminated. Students registering for classes scheduled at the college campus will be charged a $5 building use fee. Students taking classes at one of the many community locations will pay no fees. It should be noted that a few of the courses being offered have laboratory or breakage fees and these are in addition to any registration fees.

Non-California residents will be charged a tuition fee of $28 per unit of credit. This fee is in addition to the $5 building use fee charged for on-campus classes.

The 315 classes being offered this fall in the evening include courses from all of the fields in the liberal arts and sciences and the technical-vocational fields which are offered in the regular day program.

MPC has been able to take greater steps this year in expanding its offerings to make education more accessible to community members. The evening program has grown by 65 courses since last spring and much of this growth has been in the MPC Weekend College on Friday nights and Saturday mornings when some classes have scheduled.

The MPC Off-Campus program has tripled since the Spring 1974 semester to offer 37 classes in the communities of Monterey, Seaside, Pacific Grove, Carmel, Carmel Valley, Marina, and Big Sur.

The College by Television program is entering its second year with two classes being offered through home television for college credit, and Gentrain, a series of humanities mini-courses, will make its debut after three years of development.

For more information call the MPC registration desk at 375-9821, ext. 217.

Ansel Adams Gallery to offer photography workshop

The Ansel Adams Gallery announces a workshop on "Contemporary Creative Photography and History" to be conducted in Yosemite National Park from Aug. 24-31.

This workshop is designed to unify the contemporary trends in photography with the historical roots of the medium. The staff will include Jerry Uelsmann, Robert Heinecken, Carl Chiarenza, Linda Connor, and Norman Locks. Jerry Uelsmann is head of the photography department at the University of Florida, one of America's leading photographers dealing with multiple-negative images.

Robert Heinecken, head of the photography department at the University of California at Los Angeles, is widely known for his work in photo sculpture and mixed-media graphics. Carl Chiarenza is the chairman of the art department at Boston University. His primary concern will be with the history of photography. Linda Connor is on the faculty at the San Francisco Art Institute where she is co-chairperson of the photography department. Norman Locks is workshop director for the Ansel Adams Gallery.

There will be directed field sessions in Yosemite Valley and the surrounding high Sierra, print critiques, darkroom demonstrations, lectures, and slide presentations.

Although the enrollment is limited in size, the workshop is open to those seriously interested in photography on a first-come, first-serve basis. The workshop tuition is $200. All correspondence should be directed to The Ansel Adams Gallery, Box 455, Yosemite National Park, Yosemite, Calif. 95389.

FEEDBAG

By LUCY SMITHSON

IN OUR family riding nearby trails is not a simple matter. Everybody has his or her own pony, but no one can ride worth a heap of horse pucky.

The kids keep up a constant stream of cries and complaints:

"Mommy, he won't go!" That means a pony is eating again.

"Mommy, he's running away!" That means a pony is walking away, slowly but inexorably, as ponies will do.

"Mommy, he won't turn!" That means a pony is eating again.

Somedays it's a toss up as to who is more aggravating: kids or ponies. About that time a pony tosses its rider, a rider tosses her cookies, and mommy tosses her patience to the winds. I scream at everyone--two legged or four legged.

Screaming is all I can do because I always have an excited child or two up on the horse with me. I don't know how this happens. I don't even have this many children. That's the way it goes for horse loving mommies, I guess.

My Thoroughbred has spent so much time waiting for dawdling ponies that his swinging, ground-eating walk has turned into step-pause, step-pause like a bride going up to the aisle.

But we really like trail riding. Everybody likes trail riding. Every summer day, Carmel Valley is full of mounted groups.

Every Carmel Valley driver, who's lived here long enough, is trained to go slowly around blind curves. The drivers of those big scary garbage trucks come to a complete halt to let the horses pass them.

The other day our family group of complaining, slowpoke pony riders, escorted by one not-too-bright Thoroughbred, set off to ride through the old Family Y camp. There is a lovely-to-gallop-on sandy, winding road which passes through this area. Suddenly from around the bend, we heard galloping hooves and many laughing voices. Doom was approaching the pony train.

THERE'S A LONG, long trail a'winding...

A miracle happened. The leading rider rounded the curve and screeched to a sliding stop. As he did so, he held up his hand as a signal to all the gallopers behind him, who also stopped. Then the whole group of courteous teenagers walked their horses past the ponies for some distance before galloping away again.

You know? Not everyone will do that. Not everyone is aware of the importance of good manners on the trail.

Good manners on the mountainside are not just for pretty. Trail riding etiquette contributes to safety, as well as having a good time.

The first rule of trail riding (says this Emily Post of the Bridle Path) is that someone should be in charge. This doesn't have to be a formal declaration, "Will you be the leader?" In any crowd, there's someone who knows where the ride is going, or who can handle his or her own horse a little better, or who is the mommy.

THE PERSON out front must accept the responsibility for the riders following. The leader can warn the riders of hazards ahead. On the roads, the leader can warn oncoming vehicles of the riders behind.

Also on the roads the leader chooses the side of the road which is safest to ride upon. This is not always subject to vehicle traffic laws. On Carmel Valley roads, sightlines for oncoming vehicles, dangerous cliffside shoulders, and the presence of roadside hazards which might fighten horses may be taken into account.

Riders in a group ought not to pass the leader except by invitation. When riding single file, every effort must be made to keep a horse's length of open space between the horse in front and the horse behind. At least riders should allow enough space for the front horse to kick and the back horse to nip, because that's what'll happen if they get close enough.

Because of that empty space the leading rider doesn't have to--and shouldn't--hold back swinging branches for the rider following. If you try to be polite and hold the low branch, it'll swing back just in time to clout the person behind. Here's a case where it's good manners not to be polite.

Nevery spring into a canter unless everybody's ready to go with you or ready not to go with you.

I took a slowed-down racehorse on a three-day campout once in hopes of making a riding horse of him. One drugstore cowboy thought it great fun to jog up beside me and spur his roping horse into a short run. Each time he did this the racehorse would suck his hocks up under his chin and thrust his body into a starting gate start. He set several records for fast miles up and down that mountainside.

If you want to lope a bit, announce it. Then everyone can get a grip on their reins and take a deep breath first.

Stay with the group. Don't take short cuts or the long way around, no matter how well you know the territory. stay on the trail. Horses are easily injured and so is the earth.

ISN'T IT nice to know that you can almost always find things in your own size?

Never touch another rider's horse unless he asks you to do so.

Never smoke on the trail. You are now a fresh air freak. Also the nicest weather coincides with high fire hazard conditions.

Carry a litter bag. The boondocks are full of interesting trash. It's no pleasure for you to pick up, but also it's no sweat for you to pack it out. Think of the great favor you're doing for all those hikers who got too tired to carry their trash out after backpacking it in.

When you meet other groups of riders, pass by at a walk. Don't let your horse sniff noses with another horse. One of them will nip. The other will squeal. Or both.

If you meet a group of small children on ponies screech to a halt and go way around. Some of those kids are still green, and can't ride worth a heap of horse pucky.

Assemblyman Murphy visits Carmel Valley

FRESH FROM the "Early Bird" breakfast commemorating the opening of the Monterey County Fair last Tuesday, Assemblyman Frank Murphy Jr. of the 31st district, visited Carmel Valley for an interview with the Outlook.

Currently Republican caucus chairman, Murphy has been in the state assembly for eight years. Since the reapportionment of the district last year, Murphy has been representing the northerly, coastal region which includes Carmel Valley up to Los Laureles Grade as well as the rest of the Monterey Peninsula, Prunedale, Pajaro, Castroville and the coastal area down to and including Santa Cruz County, where Murphy was born and raised and received his bachelor and law degrees.

Asked for his reaction toward the work of the Central Coast Regional Coastal Zone Conservation Commission, established by Proposition 20, Murphy said, "we've been following the work of the commission carefully. Proposition 20 gave the commission $5 million to conduct their study and come up with a plan, to be submitted to the legislature by Jan. 1, 1975, which would preserve and protect the area's environment. But it looks as if the funds will be insufficient."

Murphy continued, "there is a bill, proposed by Randolph Collier, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, now under debate in the senate, which would increase the commission's funds, although no dollar amount has yet been agreed upon. Action on the bill will be taken by August, when the legislative session ends," he stated.

With respect to the quality of the work performed by the commission thus far, Murphy related, "I sent out a questionaire in March of 1974, which asked, among things, 'Is the coastal commission doing a good job?' Of those who responded, 65 per cent said 'No!' "

Murphy explained that since there were no follow up questions included in the survey, he could not be certain of the reason behind the negative response, but indicated that vested interests of business, labor and realty people were at the root of dissatisfaction.

As for my own view of the commission's work, I can't say yet; it'll be some time before the plan is actually completed for the coastal zone. The real test will come in January, when it goes before the legislature.

Asked for his reaction to Proposition 9, which set disclosure rules for public officials and lobbyists, Murphy seemed somewhat skeptical toward the viability and legality of the law.

"Prop. 9, which requires disclosure of personal assets and income of persons seeking office, reporting of campaign contributions and regulation and control of lobbyists, may be out of keeping with the provisions of the Constitution, Murphy said. "Our legislative counsel, George Murphy, is looking into the matter right now. Personally I don't like to work under a set of rules that is likely to change in a matter of months. It appears as though there is enough concern among lobbyists, labor and other groups so that someone will take on Prop. 9 to test its constitutionality."

Murphy continued, "I don't know whether the limitation set by Prop. 9 on campaign spending is realistic. We'll have a chance to fine out in the upcoming race between Houston Flournoy and Jerry Brown."

Murphy stated that with regard to the growing need for additional transportation facilities in the Valley, "Whatever is deemed appropriate at the local level is right, as far as I am concerned."

Upon hearing that there was a move afoot in Carmel Valley to remove the proposed Hatton Canyon roadway from the freeway list prepared by the State Department of Transportation, Murphy explained that he had been successful in halting construction of roadway of unwanted proportions in Santa Cruz County.

"Last year, I introduced legislation to take a portion of Route 17, from Los Gatos to Santa Cruz off the freeway list and had it put back on the conventional roadway list," he explained.

Murphy stated that he was not familiar with the plans for the Hatton Canyon freeway project, but that he would investigate the matter. He stressed that he would be most receptive to letters from concerned individuals or groups in the Valley to provide background information and a general consensus on the issue.

MURPHY STATED that "The biggest problem facing the state of California today--and the most pressing dollar-wise--is compliance with the recent court ruling in the Serrano vs. Priest case."

On April 10, 1974 Judge Jefferson of the Los Angeles Superior Court rendered his long-awaited opinion on the Serrano vs. Priest case of several years ago. The "Jefferson decision," as it has come to be known, allows the legislature six years to devise a new school financing system so that there is a differential of less than $100 per students in the amount of money available for the education of each students in every district in the state.

Wealthy districts, such as Carmel Valley and Carmel, and especially San Francisco and Los Angeles, would be "wrenched" by the effort toward equalization of school financing. Murphy remarked.

"The amount that the state puts in will simply have to increase so that the pressure will be taken off the local tax base. Years ago, the cost sharing between districts and the state ran about 50-50, now it's around 60-40, and it will have to reverse itself.

"Until we find something that looks like a good solution to implement the court's decision, our hands in the legislature are tied." Whatever legislation is passed with regard to school financing will be subject to the conditions of the plan ultimately adopted, he indicated.

"SB 1592, which is now before the assembly, allots $65 million additional state aid (about a six per cent increase) to be expended in a formula geared to inflation growth and does not provide for any program growth for the upcoming school year," he said, noting that a conservative and cautionary approach would be necessary for some time to come.

In response to a suggestion by the Outlook that some local citizens have expressed interest in acquiring more park land both in the Valley and on the Monterey Peninsula, Murphy explained that through the provisions of Proposition 1, $250 million has been designated for acquisition of land and development of parks; of this, $90 million has been allotted to counties and local governments for parks.

"While the Prop. 1 money is available, it is the state advisory board that draws up the priority list for acquisition of land, and it is in accordance with this list that legislature is introduced each year. "I will make a point of finding out how we can turn some attention to the matter of parks and beaches in this area," he assured.

New fire station opens on Rio Road

Following 2½ years of planning and construction, the new Service Area 4 fire station, located on Rio Road just east of the Holiday Inn, was formally opened Sunday.

The new facility will serve the area surrounding the city limits of Carmel. Service Area 4 (a division of Monterey County government) is bounded by the Carmel River on the south, Carmel Hacienda and High Meadows on the east, and the Carmel Woods on the north. Previously, fire services for this area were provided by one tanker truck housed at the State Forestry station on Carmel Hill.

While the old truck will continue to be in operation, the new facilities will substantially increase fire response capabilities for the area. A new tanker truck with a 1,500-gallon capacity has been purchased, and the station will be staffed by five full time professional fire fighters.

The new station is described as a "structural unit." It will respond to structural fires in its area but not forest fires. One of the major factors in the county's decision to build the new station was the increasing demands for fire service brought about by the rapid development of the area. Subdivision and commercial development, particularly at the mouth of the Carmel Valley, have been extensive in recent years.

Step Tyner, the chairman of the supervisory committee for fire services in Service Area 4, described the concerns of the county board of supervisors in deciding to expand the facilities.

"The decision was made in 1971," he said, "and was principally a matter of the insurance rates in the area. They raised insurance rates from 7 to 10 per cent at that time. We have a total of approximately $150 million in property values in the area, and that kind of insurance rate hike can make a big difference. Now, with the new station, we're expecting the insurance rates to go back down to 5 or 6 per cent for our constituents."

Tyner said funds for the new station and equipment were raised "principally through taxes." The station itself was constructed at a cost of $150 thousand, and the new tanker truck is valued at $50 thousand. The property on which the station has been built has an assessed value of $70,000 and was donates by Carmel Rancho Inc.--the firm which owns the shopping center just a short distance to the north of the station.

Dispatching operations for the expanded Area 4 fire facilities will continue to be carried out at the Carmel Hill forestry station. Tyner said by combining the dispatching operations for the two stations, a considerable amount of money is saved.

"Our dispatcher is salaried jointly by our board and the forestry district, and by maintaining this arrangement we are able to reduce the costs somewhat for our taxpayers," he explained.

The new facility will not utilize volunteer firemen. All staff members of the station are hired on contract from the state forestry district, and will work on a full time basis. Tyner said this is a "considerable advantage for the area."

"The problem would be a shortage of volunteers," he explained. "For one thing, most people who own property in our area don't live in it. And you always have trouble finding qualified volunteers for this kind of work. It takes three years to train a fire fighter."

THE NEW fire station provides the latest modern equipment to serve County Service Area 43. (Staff photo.)

He described the present staff of the station as "real pros." The staff trains together for at least three hours every day, and the station captains have graduated from a state sponsored fire fighters' school, he said.

About 400 people attended opening ceremonies at the station on Sunday. One of the subjects of curiosity was the color of the new tanker truck. In accordance with a new federal law regarding visibility of municipal vehicles, the tanker truck is bright yellow.

"People are too tradition bound," said Tyner. "The men are used to it now, and they seem to think it's better than red."

Laszlo's Restaurant to celebrate grand opening in Valley

Old World cooking in a traditionally Carmel Valley setting awaits the diner who stops at Laszlo's Continental Restaurant located at Carmel Valley Village.

After moving recently to Carmel Valley from Carmel, Laszlo and Maria Szabo are offering much the same menu and the same personal warmth afforded customers at their previous location.

The public is invited to their grand opening Saturday, July 27, starting at 6 p.m. Those who stop for the opening will be rewarded not only with the conviviality of the hosts but with a free glass of champagne.

In addition to their complete menu, featuring Hungarian and other European dishes, plus American steaks, the Szabos offer an exhaustive wine list which enhances any meal.

Located in a sylvan setting, the drawing card of Laszlo's is, simply, its extraordinary food.

Szabo is a master chef, trained in Hungary, with more than 300 recipes of his own, reflecting his professionla experience. That he enjoys cooking and is immensely proficient in it are evidenced by the quality of the cooking, which is subtle and vital without being overbearing.

On their new menu are Hungarian Beef Goulash Stew with Chef Laszlo's own egg nockerls; Veal Cutlet Cordon Bleu; Wiener Schnitzel; Chicken Paprikash with egg nockerls; Top Sirloin of Beef with onion rings; Salmon the Mediterranean Way; Hungarian Mixed Grill (featuring pork chops, calf's liver steak, and homemade sausage); and a selection of wines and beers.

To take full advantage of the culinary talents of Laszlo, one might simply walk into the restaurant and order his special of the day. This would insure not only a fresh and stimulating meal but would encourage the creative expression of a man who could be considered an artist in the kitchen.

Laszlo's office in the new location for his restaurant is, appropriately, filled with books--many of them cookbooks. And his walls proudly display his master chef certificate plus the mention of his recipe for Roast Duckling from Gourmet magazine.

This, too, is a treat from the new menu not to be overlooked: "Roast Duckling;" prepared in the old-fashioned way, no fancy sauce, just plain good, tender crisp," is the way the menu describes this dish.

One of the special delights, too, about Laszlo's is his special soup of the day, prepared fresh each day. A small touch that adds to the professional status of the restaurant is the quality of the house wines, which are graciously offered by Maria Szabo. These include delicious white, rose and red California wines which compliment any selection from the menu.

Chef Laszlo, an ardent admirer of the paprika, likes to tell the story of its introduction to his native Hungary, from which he and his wife fled 18 years ago after the Hungarian revolution.

This plant, a native of North America, was brought to Europe by the surgeon of the Santa Maria, the ship which carried Columbus to the New World. It was used to treat the ailing Queen Isabella, and was soon dispersed throughout Europe, especially in the Balkans. The Turks used this spicy plant in their foods, which was soon adopted by the Hungarians and which is today a central flavor in many truly Hungarian dishes.

There are a host of other interesting things to discuss with the Szabos, not the least of which is their cuisine. Reservations are recommended, at 659-4646.

Watsonville Band to perform at Forest Theater

The City of Carmel will present another in the 1974 Summer Sunday Afternoon Series of free concerts at the famous outdoor Forest Theater at 2 p.m. Sunday, July 28. The program will be an old-fashioned band concert played by the award winning Watsonville Band under the direction of Gonzales Viales.

During intervals in the program, the Dixieland Band and the German Band, both segments of the full band, will offer special entertainment. Also featured will be the band's solo majorette, Joan Collins.

Each season the band, which is composed of all volunteer men and women musicians ranging in age from 16 to 76, undertakes a demanding schedule of concerts throughout California's Central Coast area. It also enters many competitions and has been the winner of numerous prizes and awards.

In addition to the Forest Theater engagement, this year's schedule will include the beach bandstand in Santa Cruz, Monterey County Fair, Marin County Fair, Sacramento State Fair, Santa Cruz County Fair, Yountville Veterans Home in Napa, plus a parade schedule including the Miss California Parade in Santa Cruz, 4th of July in Seaside, San Juan Bautista, Castroville Artichoke Festival, Watsonville Fiesta Parade, and the Santa Clara Parade of Champions.

Sunday's program will include many of the familiar marches and overtures long associated with America's traditional concert in the park era. It will be a toe-tapping program to please both adults and kids. There is no charge for admission and everyone is welcome. Just walk a couple of blocks up Mountain View from Ocean Avenue to reach the Forest Theater in the pine grove.

THE WATSONVILLE Community Band will perform at Carmel's Forest Theater, free of charge to the public, at 2 p.m. Sunday, July 28.

Tantamount to present Hepburn classic

Hepburn fans will relish the chance of seeing her again this weekend at the Tantamound Theatre in one of her early successes, "The Philadelphia Story," in which she plays a society girl who yearns for down-to-earth romance.

Supporting Katharine Hepburn in this first filming of Phillip Barry's play (a second version was titled "High Society") is an excellent cast headed by Cary Grant and James Stewart, whose role as the reporter won him an Academy Award. Also seen are Roland Young and Henry Daniell. George Cukor directed the film.

Monterey County fair begins

A busy place this week is the Monterey County Fairgrounds in Monterey, where the 1974 Fair will be in progress through Sunday.

Along with the usual Fair exhibits in the areas of floriculture, agriculture, home economics, art, crafts, livestock and photography, a special Youth Fair is attracting visitors to Pattee Arena where the talents of the county's schoolchildren are displayed in a special exhibit. Also in the arena, a number of different kinds of youth groups have displays in three colorful carousels.

Friday is Senior Citizens Day, when persons over 65 will be admitted to the fairgrounds at half price until 6 p.m. (an earlier release erroneously stated that they would be admitted free). At 10 a.m. Saturday the Junior Livestock Auction will begin, with all invited to bid on the animals, with 39 market beef, 63 market hogs and 240 market lambs scheduled to be sold. Auction chairman Bill Barker, executive secretary of the Monterey County Farm Bureau, suggests that "this is a great time to stock up on the meat supply for your home freezer or rented meat locker."

At 3 p.m. Saturday a first for the Monterey County Fair will be the Frog Jumping Contest, sponsored by the Active 20-30 Club of the Monterey Peninsula, the contest taking place on the outdoor stage. Margo Dancers, a Las Vegas-type dance act, will perform on this same stage at 5:15 and 7:30 p.m., and other entertainment on Saturday will be provided by the Pauline Hall Dancers of King City, Marimba Serenaders of Salinas, Filipino Dancers of the Monterey Peninsula and others.

On Sunday, the fair's closing day, Round Robin showmanship is expected to attract a large crowd to the barn area at 2 p.m., and the Watsonville Band will present a concert at 4:30 p.m. on the outdoor stage.

JOINING IN the excitement at the 1974 Monterey National Horse Show next week will be Bob Knudsen of Portola Valley, pictured at last year's show in Pattee Arena. Beginning Monday, Aug. 5, at the Monterey County Fairgrounds in Monterey, two fast-paced shows will be presented daily at 1:30 p.m. and 7:45 p.m. through Saturday, Aug. 10. Jumper classes, walking horses, gaited horses, stock horses, cutting horses, roadsters, hackney ponies, team roping and more will be included in the six-day show.

Zonta Club presents sculpture to airport

Members of the Zonta Club of the Monterey Peninsula gathered at the Monterey Peninsula Airport last Saturday to honor Amelia Earhart, who was a member of the Zonta Club of New York when she disappeared in 1937.

Peninsula Club President Helen Mowatt presented a metal sculpture and plaque to be hung at the airport to Ted Durein, chairman of the airport district board during the afternoon commemorative ceremony, attended by members of several men's and women's service organizations. The sculpture was created by Monterey artist William Gorham.

Zonta is an international service organization of executive women in business and professions, which seeks to actively conduct significant civic, educational and social welfare projects within the club's community.

The Amelia Earhart Fellowship program is Zonta's major continuing international service project, through which $3,000 is provided annually in grants to highly qualified women for graduate study in aero-space sciences.

The group was founded in 1919 and has grown to a current membership of 24,000 in more than 43 countries.

Organ club to meet

The Monterey Peninsula Organ Buffs, a 65-member group of non-professional and professional home organists, will hold their monthly meeting at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, July 28. The club will meet at the Monterey Music Company, 598 Fremont St., Monterey.

The featured artist will be the locally popular organist, Joe Gauthier. Gauthier is the organist for the Moose Lodge in Del Rey Oaks.

All members of the club and other organ music lovers are invited to attend. New memberships are welcomed by this rapidly growing group of home organ enthusiasts.

Two plays continued at MPC

The final performances of the Monterey Peninsula College Players production of "Hair" are scheduled for this weekend and performances of SRO Theatre's production of "The Drunkard, or The Fallen Saved" will continue for another week.

The American love-rock musical "Hair" is on the main stage of the college theatre on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 25-28. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. and tickets are $2.50 general and $1.50 for students and military.

American theatre's long-running play, "The Drunkard" is in the SRO Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday, July 23, 24, 30, and 31 at 8:30 p.m. General admission is $1.50 and students and military are $1.

"The Drunkard" has been in continuous production in Los Angeles for 28 years and was staged for 50 consecutive years on the East Coast. It is the story of a young hero who is brought down in society by liquor and a selfish lawyer, but is rehabilitated to defeat his mentor.

Reservations for either theatre production can be made by calling the MPC Theatre Box Office.

"Hair" has been one of the biggest productions taken on by the MPC Players and was brought back this summer by popular demand after a successful six-week run last spring. The production is described as a "period piece against big government, established religion, war, and oppression of any kind. It's for free speech, free love, and freedom from unnecessary restraints," said Director Morgan Stock.

Valleyites place in county fair competition

Carmel Valley is making quite a showing at the Monterey County Fair this year. The judges' marks in many catagories show that Valleyites have already taken many top honors in the arts and crafts and livestock categories.

In the photograh exhibit, Michael Smookler from Carmel Valley won a first place prize in the color print, flower category. Eileen Dufur, from the Valley, won an award of merit in the color slide, flowers section.

Carmel Valley was well-represented in the fine arts section at the fair, too. In crafts, Julia Eagleton took first place for a metal sculpture and Claudia Bibber won a second place prize in graphics and placed second in silver crafts.

Also in the fine arts, Ralph Payton won second place honors in stone sculpture and won a second place prize in ornamental iron work.

K.R. Smith won second place in the miscellaneous class in metals, and Jacquline Smith won second in handwoven accessories.

In the glass category, Valleyite Eleanor Harden was awarded first and second places in the miscellaneous glass.

In watercolors, Claudia Bibber won in the modern division, and Kay Rogers took the fourth place honor in the watercolors, traditional division.

The fair's "barnside" was also spotted with many winners, representing Carmel Valley.

Kent Swanson, of the Buckeye 4-H Club in the Valley, took a first place in rabbit competition, senior bucks, six months and over division. Nancy Pryer won second place in senior does, six months and over division; Susan Lockwood won first place in senior does, six months and over; and Winifred Reuter took the third place in junior and bucks, under six months.

In the junior does, under six months category, Dany Weiss won first place, Ron Gayman won second, and Nancy Pryer won third. Nancy Pryer also captured the first place honors in over-all showmanship; Pam Gayman won second and Winifred Reuter won third.

In the 4-H breeding sheep competition, Bill Wilson swept four out of four events--in two of them, he was the only contestant--winning four first prizes and two seconds.

A member of the Buckeye 4-H Club, Wilson won the Suffolk lamb event, placed first and second in the Suffolk ewe competition, won the Suffolk young flock event and came in first in the pair of ewe event.

YWCA plans 'Pamper Day' at Los Laureles Lodge

The YWCA of the Monterey Peninsula has scheduled a day of indulgence for Peninsula women, Monday, Aug. 5, beginning at 10 a.m. and continuing through the afternoon. The day has been designated Pamper Day in response to requests from women for a place in the sun after days of fog, mist and children home from school.

John Bulmer, owner-proprietor of Carmel Valley's Los Laureles Lodge has reserved his total facility for the YWCA that day. Included in the fee will be free use of the pool, exercise equipment, whirlpool, sauna and steam baths, and a healthy and generous luncheon.

The $20 fee will also include aquatic exercise sessions in the pool, manicures, make-up demonstrations by two national beauty product firms, and hair wash and blow styling, under the supervision of Clifford Hamilton, noted Peninsula hair stylist.

Reservations for the day are required. Registrations are confirmed with the receipt of a $20 check at the YWCA, Box 1362, Monterey, Ca. 93940. Participants can also drop their payment off at the YWCA office, at the corner of Webster and El Estero, in the USO Building in Monterey. Further information is available by calling 649-0834.

First Baptist

Summer services at First Baptist, Carmel, find a balance between the formal and the personal. Vacationers, along with Peninsula residents are invited to share in these worship experiences. Each service is designed around a Bible theme, and deals with spiritual issues in every day living.

Pastor McBeth's sermon titles for this week are, for the 11 a.m. service, "Developing A Better Mouse Trap," and for the 6 p.m. service, "The Church: In the World of Human Need, Not in Holy Walls?"

A summer Bible study seminar for women, entitled, "Discovering God's Master Plan For Your Life" will begin at 9:30 a.m. Friday, July 26. Nursery and child care services for children through the second grade will be provided, and women of the community are invited to attend.

Obituaries

WOLTER

Services have been held at the Farlinger Funeral Home for David P. Wolter, a retired Carmel Valley rancher, who died July 15 at Monterey Hospital after being stricken in downtown Monterey.

Wolter, a Carmel Valley native, was born Jan. 7, 1896, and for most of his life grew pears, apricots and cherries on a ranch next to the Carmelo School. During World War I he served with the Marine Corps in the Virgin Islands.

After his retirement, Wolter moved to Monterey with his wife, Mary, who died Sept. 1, 1972.

Surviving are a stepson, Aldo Rosasco of Los Gatos; two stepdaughters, Evelyn Lavin and Bessie Agresti, both of Monterey; a brother, Julius Wolter of Albian; a sister, Irene Wolter Kitchen, also of Albian; two grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

MORTON

Services are pending at the Paul Mortuary for Charlotte Augusta Morton of Hacienda Carmel who died Saturday at Community Hospital after a period of failing health.

A native of Tescotte, Kan. she had been a resident of the Peninsula since 1947. She was a self-employed artist who made her own paint from rocks andmineral pigments.

Working in Carmel, she did many sketches of Carmel for postcard reproductions under the trade name of "Home Town Cards." Her work was exhibited in many Peninsula galleries.

BELL

Graveside services have been held in Union Cemetary, Placerville, for Gegory E. Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barry L. Bell of birth last Wednesday at Silas B. Hays Hospital, Fort Ord.

He is survived by his parents.

Valley Allstars capture Peninsula Little League Championship

By ARTHUR BLACK
Little League area administrator

Carmel Valley Little League Allstars edged the Carmel Allstars 3-2 yesterday evening to seize the Monterey Peninsula Area Championship and gain a berth in the District 39 playoffs this Saturday.

Carmel Valley had advanced to the championship game by defeating Seaside National last Saturday in a game that ended 8-2. Buzz Fulton pitched the entire game, striking out 12 and walking only two. Brent Eagling of Story Road drove in two RBI's, as did Fulton, and Anthony Galang had a singleton RBI.

The Carmel Valley attack began early and was consistent as the Village nine hits for three runs in the first inning and one each in the second, third and fourth, with two runs scored in the fifth inning. Brent Eagling hit two-for-three, both doubles, and Buzz Fulton aided his own cause by doubling.

In the championship game yesterday, Valley pitcher Jodie Moore went the distance, striking out 14 Carmel batters and walking four. Tom Vanetta doubled, and Matt Nottenkamper was credited with the only Carmel Valley RBI. Adam Sherburne of Carmel drove in both Carmel runs on a single and a home run.

Carmel Valley will take on the Santa Cruz Area champions, Watsonville National Little League, this Saturday at Carmel Little League field. Game time is 1 p.m. Seaside National and Marina will vie for third place in the Monterey Peninsula Area at 10:30 a.m.

Valleyites make MPC honor roll

Seven hundred ninety students were listed on the spring 1974 honor roll at Monterey Peninsula College. Honor roll students achieved a 3.0 or better grade point average on a 4.0 scale, while completing at least 12 units of course work, according to Sally Jones, MPC registrar.

Mary Berta, Caryn Ecker and Jack Seliskar, all of Carmel Valley, were awarded "Highest Honors" in recognition of their all "A" (4.0 grade point) average.

Valleyites receiving "High Honors" for their 3.5-3.9 GPA's were Charles Allaire, Karen Davies, Robert Dimitrijevich, Todd Gebhart, Richard Holine, Linda Klemek, Kenton Kraemer, Nicole Mule, Mark Scheiter and Annedore Woehler.

Receiving "Honors" for their 3.0-3.4 GPA's were Valleyites Victoria Bennett, Jana Deck, Daniel Donahue, Jo D. Gooden, Michael Groves, Patricia Groves, Mark Guthrie, Jowena Hendrix, Catherine Morris and Theresa Varney.

BSI committee meets at La Playa

Committee members of Behavioral Sciences Institute Auxilary met on July 16 at the La Playa Hotel with Bud Allen, hotel owner, and 18 representatives of Peninsula non-profit organizations. The group completed plans for the three-day Christmas Festival to be held at the La Playa Dec. 13 through 15.

Temporarily called "Christmas-by-the-Sea" the event will be co-sponsored by the La Playa Hotel and the Behavioral Sciences Institute Auxiliary.

Great enthusiasm was shown when Allen announced that he would donate $5,000 in prize money to be awarded during a gala champagne preview on Friday evening, Dec. 31.

Door prizes of two white doves in brass cages will be given away each night by the La Playa.

Organizations participating will be able to display and sell original creations, as well as compete for the prize money. Categories include various Christmas decorations, puppets, dolls, boutique items, needlecraft, wall hangings, creches.

General admission will be $1 with children under six admitted free. Mrs. Van Court Warren and Mrs. Barbara Haber are co-chairmen for the festival. Mrs. Charles Clauser and Mr. Walter Burde are in charge of the champagne preview.

Names of the non-profit organizations participating in BSIA Christmas Festival include the Church of the Wayfarer, American Field Service, Altrusa Club of Monterey Peninsula, Seaside Quota Club, YMCA, Blind Service Center, Alano Club of Monterey and Delta Zeta.

Also participating are MPVS, All Saints Episcopal Church, Pi Phi's, Church of the Oaks, Clark Foundation and Monterey Civic Club.

TENNIS TALK

By KEN GREEN

The Eastwood it wasn't, but an action-packed fun-filled weekend it was. That certain charisma that the Eastwood is loaded with was lacking in Berkeley but Don Hamilton and his able assistants squeezed 100 per cent out of what they had to work with.

It's amazing how a facility has such an affect on the total success of an event. This Berkeley tennis club is beautiful with the old Clarmont Hotel as a backdrop. The courts were located well and the stadium court was ideal for feature events. But...there was something lacking. Maybe it was the city itself, with its far lefts and its far rights, not really tuned to the nature of the event.

However I felt the tournament was a great success for the Berkeley tennis club and the charities involved. Don Hamilton and his crew deserve accolades for a superb job of staging a difficult tournament for the first time in this traditionally very proper setting. Some of the old Berkeley conservatives must have winced and squirmed in their seats at some of Don's microphone antics. Don with a little practice could become the Don Rickles of the tennis set.

The Saturday night gala was great with Merv Griffin doing a superb job of being host for the show. Freddy Martin and his band took us back to the nostalgic 40s and 50's and there wasn't a dry eye in the place when Merv sang "I've got a lousy bunch of coconuts." Are you kidding!

I thought the highlight of the show was when Merv asked Clint Eastwood up to the mike to say a few words to the folks who paid $200 bucks a plate for the occasion. Clint ambled up and said just that, a few words, hello and goodbye. Merv stated, "Is that it Clint, after all you're No. 1." Clint replied in his inimitable fashion "I got to be No. 1 by knowing when to keep my mouth shut." Words well spoken.

Edgar Bergen performed as did another Eastwood favorite Ed Ames. All in all it was a fine, well-run show and I think everyone without exception would like to see it become an annual event and a permanent stop for the celebrity tennis crew. Who won? Everyone did I guess.

Let's see, Maggie did as usual. Basketball great Rick Barry and his partner-pro John Zwigg won the mens doubles. Mens celebrity singles were won by Ed Ames over Jerry Rush. Mens open singles were won by Al Martin over Ken Green -- that makes four out of five finals that I've lost, a celebrity tennis record! The scoring system was unique, if you were the strong player of the team you were allowed only one serve and you could not go to the net. The four point-no-add system was used and the matches were one set. There was some confusion here and there but the matches moved along well and on time.

Celebrity tournaments bring out some very unique types of people. Some ususual ladies were present with sweaters open to the kneecaps and an abundance of silicone to enhance the effect. They spend a great deal of time standing around, holding their breath, hoping someone will offer them a screen test.

Then there is the autograph hound who runs up and asks for your name on a pice of toilet paper. You oblige, they look at the signature and say "who are you?" You reply that you are a thumb tack salesman from Gilroy and they have the nerve to ask you for an eraser.

Then there are the shouters. These are the guys who yell across rooms -- Hi Clint, Hi Merv, Johnathan etc...it's me August. No one knows who August is but he insists on carrying it on to the point of introducing relatives to the poor celebrity.

One gentleman came up to me and said "I'm really sorry they canceled your series." To this I replied; "Oh yes, but 20 years on the same program does get a bit trying."

The whole scene is unreal, if you took it seriously you would wind up in a cuckoo clock. I can well understand why many celebrities travel with their shrinks close at hand.

The gift package for the players was an all-timer. A bicycle chain and lock, a staple gun, a box of stale cheeze-its, 14 kinds of sun tan lotion and a ticket to the San Francisco zoo. Where do they find this stuff?

Camp Amigos in full swing

This summer is the eighth year of operation for Camp Amigos, a local camp whose purpose is to bring together children of different races, economic and cultural backgrounds so that they might gain an understanding of themselves as well as others.

The camp runs four weeks, the first two weeks of which are a day camp, the latter two weeks, an overnight camp in Big Sur State Park. The over night session has already begun, running July 22 through 26 and Aug. 2 through 29.

The directors for the camp are Mr. and Mrs. Bob Brooks. They are assisted by competent counselors selected by the Brooks and who seem to fit in to the campers' cultural backgrounds. They receive a very minimal salary, but the rewards outrange the monetary value. Camp Amigos is essentially a community service project.

The campers pay a minimal fee of $2 per child for the day camp and $5 per child for the overnight. The remainder of the cost is made up by donations from churches, service clubs, and individuals who value this program.

The fees paid by the children pay for all their activities, including lunch, during the period each child attends.

Thy day camp is held at All Saints Day School in Carmel Valley. The day campers also take field trips to such places as the sand dunes of Del Monte Beach, the bay where the children fish or to Tularcitos swimming pool in Carmel Valley. The last Thursday of the week, the day campers do have an overnight which includes a cookout and campfire.

The overnight campers remain in Big Sur the entire week and hike, take nature walks, go fishing, and do some backpacking.

Mary Schrady, board member for Camp Amigos, says she wants more people in the community to be aware of the camp and what it does.

"The children look forward to coming back each year," she said. "I wish the community understood this and was aware of the lasting friendships that are made, and how important it is for us to have such a camp in our area."

MPC geology course features raft trip

Colorado Plateau Geology including a five-day raft trip on the Green and Colorado Rivers is the subject of a special travel course being organized at Monterey Peninsula College.

Geology 695, "Geology of the Colorado Plateau" is a three-unit class which will be taught by MPC geology instructor John Kingsley and will start July 26. The class has several meetings before it embarks on a 12-day bus tour from Monterey to Green River, Utah to begin a five-day raft trip on the Green and Colorado Rivers including Labyrinth, Stillwater and Cataract Canyons.

The return bus trip will take students through Monument Valley, the Painted Desert and the North River of the Grand Canyon. Kingsley said the objective of the course is to bring participants closer to being "at one with nature" through understanding of the earth's geology.

The Colorado Plateau is an excellent area to learn the earth's geology by direct observation. The plateau is a raised platform of the earth's crust which has been incised by deep river canyons and erosional plateaus, exposing the panorama of geologic time. history and structure.

The transportation cost for the course is $210 and includes bus fare and the river raft trip which includes meals. Campground, hotel and other meals expenses will be about $40.

The class is limited to 31 people and the deadline for registration is Aug. 1. For more information call Kingsley at 373-3598 or at 649-1150, ext. 236 or at MPC Community Services, 373-5522.
